Biography

Andrew Banna is a Principal Lawyer and Accredited Specialist in Coleman Greig's Family Law Team.

Andrew has significant expertise across all areas of Family Law and has specialised in the area for more than 18 years. Prior to joining Coleman Greig, he managed his own practice for over a decade.

He is an Accredited Family Law Mediator and has successfully concluded many matters for clients in regard to complex property matters relating to businesses & trusts, forensic accounting, third party claims and inheritances as well as workers compensation payouts.

Andrew is highly experienced in parenting matters including circumstances involving allegations of abuse and family violence, parental incapacity, relocation of a child and paternity.

Andrew regularly represents his clients at The Federal Circuit and Family Court of Australia and also appears at the Local Court to assist clients with Police matters that can arise following the breakdown of their relationships.

Andrew enjoys writing about legal topics in Family Law in a plain English manner so that clients and the wider community are informed on important and evolving issues.
